SOLDIERS' FAMILIES ARE WELL OFF HERE

That the Red Cross has not been called on once to aid in the support of the family of a discharged soldier was the statement of Miss Mabel Shumway, local secretary, today. The cause is the abundance of work in Janesville. While other cities are to a degree filled with poverty-stricken soldiers who cannot find positions, every man wearing a uniform, with two exceptions, has been given work through the local U. S. employment service bureau.

There have, however, Miss Shumway said, been requests that the Red Cross furnish transportation to soldiers who become stranded here. After careful investigation of each individual case, and after communication with the Red Cross of the vicinity from which the man enlisted, this money is furnished Men who were vagrants before the enlisting, and who have reverted to their former habits upon discharge, can not, of course, receive consideration.

MINUTE BOOK IS USED AS EVIDENCE

Hundreds of detailed questions regarding the minute book of the Straits Lumber company were asked of the defendants by Atty. Charles E. Pierce, when the hearing in the action of J. P. Cullen vs. Straits Lumber company directors was resumed this morning before M. P. Richardson, circuit court commissioner. James S. Fife and George E. King, two of the directors of the company, were placed on the stand and questioned throughout the morning. O. E. Oestreich represented the defendants in the action.

"I am trying to give you all the information I have about the affairs of the company," said Mr. King when Attorney Pierce made an inference that there might have been some secret arrangement made between the board of directors and F. B. Pendleton, who is managing the interests of the company in British Columbia.

"Nothing has ever been done secretly; everything has been in the open," he continued.

Questioned regarding the records as shown by the minute book, Mr. King answered that he wrote up the records and filed the papers copying resolutions as soon as he had time. Much stress was laid by Mr. Pierce on his supposition that many entries had been made long after the meetings had taken place.

Mr. King testified that he had been paid a salary of $75 a month from the company since Jan. 1, 1917, for acting as secretary. He also testified that he was the only one of the officers who received a salary.

When asked to exhibit the complete records of the company as shown by the books in the Canadian office, Mr. King said that he declined to bring the books to Janesville for use in the hearing because the company is actively engaged in the lumber business in Canada and the books must necessarily be kept there.

As vice-president of the corporation and acting president at many times, Mr. Fife was questioned concerning financial statements and other affairs of the company. He testified that there had never been any division of profits or any statement of profits from the mill operation from Pendleton and Gilkey. The profits were turned into the business as capital, he testified.

He said that no lumber had been cut off the Hastings or Haslam lake tracts from 1912 up until the amalgamation of the tracts into the Straits Lumber company in 1916. Asked why Mr. King was paid a salary of $75 a month for acting as secretary he said that he was working to change the corporation from a Wisconsin corporation to a British Columbia one, and that the details of the work caused much trouble.

JANESVILLE POLICE WILL DANCE TONIGHT

With large American flags flying and the cozy corners completed, the Janesville Police are ready to entertain the local people at their second annual dancing party.

Every effort has been made to stage one of the prettiest parties of the season and an investigation is being made of the success of the affair.

Decorators were busy on Monday and during the day working in the hall and the place has been converted into a beautiful palace for the occasion. George Hatch's eight piece orchestra has been secured for the party and the police officers stated this morning that there would be plenty of waltzes and other old dances for the older folks.

REVOLVER SHOTS AWAKEN RESIDENTS

Five distinct revolver shots were heard in the vicinity of the St. Paul passenger station about twelve o'clock last evening.

City Attorney Roger Cunningham reported the matter to the police and an investigation is being made.

Several persons returning home stated that the shots were unmistakably those of a revolver. A freight train had just passed the Jackson street crossing, bound north, and the theory is advanced that a murder might have occurred in one of the box cars.

City Attorney Roger Cunningham, returning home after attending a business meeting heard the five shots and as soon as the freight train had passed the crossing he started across at a rapid rate. Upon reaching the south side of the crossing a man ran across the street in front of his automobile and dodged between the houses toward Franklin street.

When last seen the man was running toward River street and although he was followed he eluded his pursuers in the dark on North Franklin street.

An investigation of the premises in the vicinity of the depot was made but no evidence of a murder could be found. On the theory that a murder had been committed in a box car on the freight train the stations north of this city were notified, but no report has been received in this city.

RHETORICAL CLASH AT SOCIALIST MEET

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Berne, Feb. 4.—A violent rhetorical clash between the French and German socialists marked the second night of the international labor and socialist conference. The French side of the debate was in the hands of Pierre Renaudel, Albert Thomas and M. Mistrail. Otto Wels, the former military commander of Berlin, said that the German socialists already had settled the question of responsibility for the war having taken all power from the princes and kings. Wels accused Great Britain of having killed 700,000 German women, children and old men by the "hunger blockade." He said that the exclusion of the German socialists would impede the reconstruction of the international.

Make your Children Real Music Lovers

How many people do you know who can listen intelligently to high class music? Such people form a minority everywhere. Why? We all should like to be music lovers.

The trouble is that the people are not taught right from the start. Children do not get acquainted with fine music until they are adults. Yet the best accomplishment is to appreciate even more than play a little—the best is music.

The most complete, the only universal, musical educator is the

the player piano we feature; the player piano that is not mechanical; that can be played musically, that teaches children to know and love the best, that the family can safely be left with because it does not get out of order; the player piano that is elegant, most durable, best.

We can demonstrate this to you. Come and see us.

Just Arrived

Two beautiful M. Schulz Player Pianos, one mahogany satin finish, the other a very pretty Burl Walnut case. Come and see them for they will surely please you, if you are looking for quality. The M. Varnish and Enamel.

Paints which dry with a high luster or gloss are called enamels. These are made from zinc oxide ground in varnish. Varnish is produced from fossil resins such as copal, kauri, etc. These resins, which originally flowed from trees, have been deposited for centuries in the earth. They are mined in Africa and New Zealand and are found in big lumps. Popular Science Monthly.

Making Corks Like New.

After corks have been used a while they sometimes become so compressed that the contents of the bottle leak out. This may be remedied by putting the corks in boiling water and leaving them there until the water cools. They will then be as good as new and fit just as tightly.

A GREAT ECONOMY BECAUSE OF EXTRA WEAR

"After a trip to Kilauea, the active volcano of Hawaii, my Neolin-soled shoes were the only ones not absolutely ruined. Many in our party wore hob-nailed boots," said Miss Jean P. Lane of Seattle, Washington.

The sharp jagged lava of Kilauea, as an ordinary sole to pieces quickly. That Neolin Soles stood the test but emphasizes their toughness and durability. These qualities are built into them by a scientific process. Women—and men and children, too—who are hard on shoes should buy them with Neolin Soles. They come in many styles, and because of the extra wear they give, are a great economy.

And any repairman will re-sole your worn shoes with Neolin Soles, which are flexible and waterproof as well as long-wearing. They are made by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., Akron, Ohio, who also make Wingfoot Heels, guaranteed to outwear all other heels.

Andrew Henrohn, a farmer, who came to Janesville about five weeks ago and started to live at the Commercial hotel without any prospects of obtaining money to pay for his lodging unless he went to work was sentenced to spend 90 days in jail by Judge Maxfield this morning.

Henrohn waived examination and entered a plea of guilty to the charge of jumping a board bill. He told the judge that he intended to pay for it and if given an opportunity to work he would gladly pay the bill in the weekly installment plan.

Judge Maxfield thought it would be a better plan to let Henrohn get a job on a farm and in that manner working under the commitment law he would be able to reimburse Mr. Grant, the owner of the hotel.

TWO INEBRIATES FINED BY JUDGE

Edward Kelly and James Riley Both Fined Guilty to Charges of Intoxication in Municipal Court.

James Riley and Edward Kelly were the only two to be brought before Judge Maxfield in the municipal court this morning to answer charges of intoxication.

Riley gave the old excuse of missing railroad connections in place of catching his train. On his story of buying two Liberty bonds he was given a fine of $10 and costs or 15 days.

"Twenty-five dollars and costs or 30 days," Judge Maxfield said when Edward Kelly an old offender entered a plea of guilty to a similar charge.

REVENUE COLLECTOR
WARNS OF "FAKE"
INCOME "EXPERTS"

[Special to the Gazette]
Madison, Wis., Feb. 4.—A warning against "fake experts" on income tax has been sounded by the internal revenue bureau, in a statement received by Collector Williams from Commissioner Daniel C. Roper.
"Business houses and individual taxpayers are being canvassed this year by numerous so-called 'income tax experts,' who offer to use their magic wands to solve the tax problem to relieve the busy taxpayer from all worries about his tax responsibilities."
"I desire to make public announcement, for the information of taxpayers, that an investigation of the qualifications of many of these 'experts' will disclose the fact that very few have had the training and experience that would place them anywhere near the expert class."
"Some of them were formerly temporary employees of the government who are attempting to capitalize this fact regardless of their personal knowledge of the revenue laws and regulations. Others are soliciting clients on the strength of diplomas as income tax experts obtained after taking long-distance courses by means of printed instructions of doubtful value."
"Taxpayers should not allow themselves to be imposed upon by strangers who claim to be income tax experts."
"The bureau is arranging to furnish, for the benefit of income taxpayers in every city and town in the country, a free advisory service by trained collectors, agents, inspectors, and deputies, at the offices of collectors and their deputies, and at other central points, information and advice with respect to filing returns under the new revenue bill, which may be had up to the final date for filing such returns."
"Banks, trust companies and similar responsible institutions have already co-operated in furnishing authentic income tax information, and have generously offered to serve the government and taxpayers in this respect again this year."

An Attack of Influenza
Often Leaves Kidneys in Weakened Condition

Doctors in all parts of the country have been kept busy with the epidemic of influenza which has visited so many homes.
The symptoms of this disease are very distressing and leave the system in a run-down condition. Almost every victim complains of lame back and urinary troubles which should not be neglected, as these danger signals often lead to dangerous kidney troubles. Druggists report a large sale on Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, which so many people say soon heals and strengthens the kidneys after an attack of grip. Swamp-Root, being an herbal compound, has a gentle healing effect on the kidneys, which is almost immediately noticed in most cases by those who try it. Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., offer to send a sample size bottle of Swamp-Root, on receipt of ten cents, to every sufferer who requests it. A trial will convince any one who may be in need of it. Regular medium and large size bottles, for sale at all druggists. Be sure to mention this paper. Janesville Daily Gazette.

High School News

The examinations at the high school started this morning at 8:55 and continued through the entire day. The students will also be given their marks in the various subjects for the past semester.

His advice to the boys was excellent and was appreciated by all. After Mr. Cunningham's address ten new members were voted into the society. They will be formally introduced and initiated at the meeting two weeks from last evening.

The senior class held a short business meeting Monday afternoon, immediately after school. Miss M. Nebeck, domestic science instructor, was selected as class advisor. No other business of importance came before the gathering.

TIPPECANOE

Being a True Chronicle of Certain Passages Between OAKY HARRISON and PETEY DINK, O'BANNON of the Battle of Tippecanoe in the Indiana Wilderness, and of What Befell Thereafter in Old Corydon and now first set forth by SAMUEL MCCOY

Illustrations by De Alton Valentine.

"Cre nom!" ejaculated the figure in the bow as the canoe ran up the reedy bank. "Les hommes tous qui pour-suivent la fille de Corydon!"

Toussaint Dubois, the captain of the gales, had small respect for foolhardiness. But the second occupant of the canoe recognized the two adventurers with a cry of thankfulness and hung his arms around them.

"Get in the canoe quick," he said, "no tellin' what pesky devils that is heebobouts."

"Thank God you found us, Hogue!" cried David as they obeyed his command and the light craft shot out again over the water. The man had served with Hargrove, captain of the company in which David had enlisted. "Are you carrying messages to the Prophet? What were those fies we heard?"

"The musicians at the fort," said Hogue.

"The fort?" repeated David blankly. "Where are we?"

"Ye're on the Wabash, sixty miles north of the Old Post."

"But there's no fort on the Wabash," said Blackford wonderingly.

"Th' buildin' on it's just begun," answered Hogue; "th' army gut here yildly."

"The army?" Ike and David exclaimed together.

"In course ye didn't know—let Vincennes, horse and foot, nigh to a thousand on us, seven days ago. Will Harrison's a-commandin' and Dubois and I air a-scoutin' around the bresh."

"Then Tecumseh has chosen war?"

"Tecumseh's still south," said the backwoodsman grimly. "Old Horse-head Gibson and Harrison figger that he's up t' devilment with the Creeks an' we'll air a-goin' t' skeer the Prophet into a shakin' ague before Tecumseh has a chance t' git back."

Dubois grunted in assent. "By gar, thees Harrison he strake queeck lak panther!"

"You came just in time," said David weakly. Silently he stumbled along at the heels of Hogue and Dubois, as they bore Ike's limp body between them toward the clearing in the forest on the east bank of the river; and when the men of his company ran out to meet them their cheers rang strangely distant in his ears.

But food and rest soon brought back his strength; and Ike, too, gained rapidly under the clear skies of October.

DOCTOR SAID LUNGS WERE TOO FAR GONE

But Miss Green's Recovery Proves That There Is Hope for Many Consumptives.

"One of the best physicians in Terre Haute said he could not save me, as my lungs were too far gone. Another physician thought I might live a few months and then gave me up. Then I had three very bad hemorrhages and was nearly sick and bones. My lungs failed me all the time. Every time I coughed it nearly killed me. I commenced taking Milks Emulsion April 1906. My appetite improved. The new left my lungs and I commenced to gain in flesh and strength rapidly. My flesh soon began to grow and I weighed 150 pounds. My health is fine and I am as strong as ever. I owe my life to Milks Emulsion."—Miss Green, 505 S. 2nd St., Terre Haute, Ind.

It is not claimed that all cases of consumption are curable, but Milks Emulsion has brought health to many so-called hopeless cases. It can do no harm and causes nothing to cry at the maker's risk.

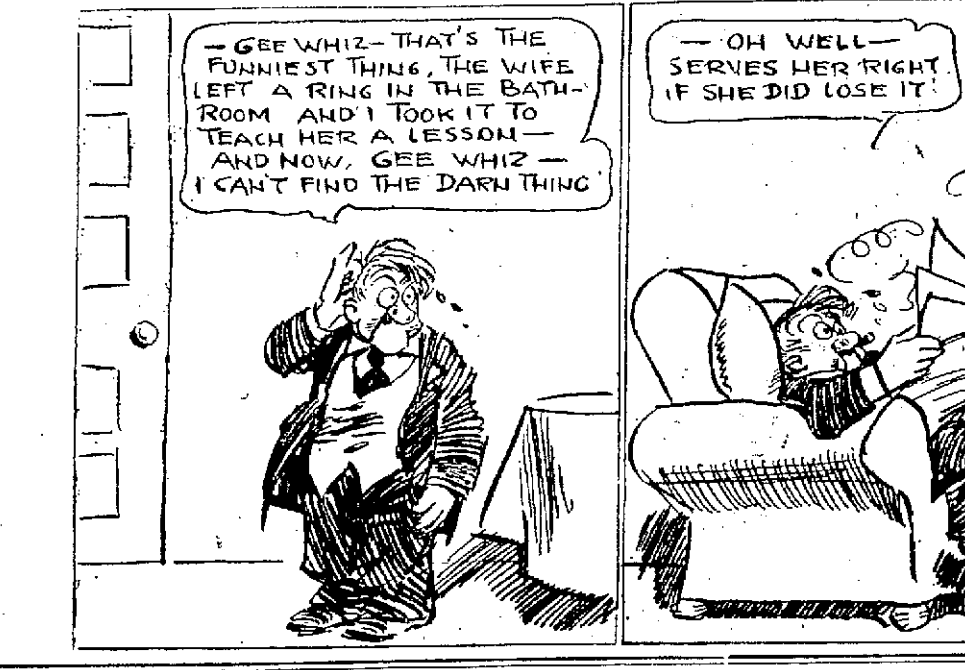

Milks Emulsion is a pleasant nutritive food and a corrective medicine. It restores healthy, natural bowel action, and gets away with all kinds of ailments. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. It is made of fish and strength. Milks Emulsion is strongly recommended to run-down people, and it has produced amazing results in many cases of tuberculosis of the lungs. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are cured promptly and usually in one day.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten as soon as the first cream. Truly a wonderful medicine for weak, sickly children.

No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milks Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions, and if not satisfied with results, your money will be promptly refunded. Price 60c and $1.50 per bottle. Milks Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind., sold and guaranteed by J. P. Baker.

PETEY DINK—SEVEN-EIGHT—NINE-TEN. CARRY HIM OUT, BOYS.

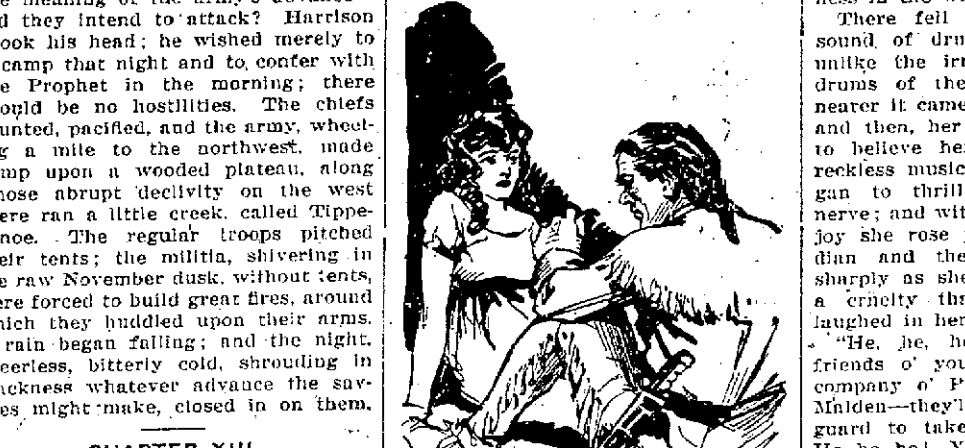

All this month was spent in completing the log fortification, and then, leaving it as a base with a handful of men, the column took up its course once more toward the Prophet's town at Tippecanoe. The sick, Blackford among the number, were left at Fort Harrison to spare them the onward march.

David again entered Captain Hargrove's company. Among the cold ashes of his hopes one gleam still persisted: he might yet find Toinette at the Prophet's town. Indeed, that was the one place where she had probably been taken.

The column halted and a parley took place. Angry the Indians inquired the meaning of the army's advance—did they intend to attack? Harrison shook his head; he wished merely to encamp that night and to confer with the Prophet in the morning; there should be no hostilities. The chiefs grunted, pacified, and the army, wheeling a mile to the northwest, made camp upon a wooded plateau, along whose abrupt declivity on the west there ran a little creek, called Tippecanoe. The regular troops pitched their tents; the militia, shivering in the raw November dusk, without tents, were forced to build great fires, around which they huddled upon their arms. A rain began falling; and the night, cheerless, bitterly cold, shrouding in blackness whatever advance the savages might make, closed in on them.

CHAPTER XIII.

In the House of the Prophet.

The red warriors who had glided past Blackford's delirious eyes dragged with them a girl who called piteously for help. "Ike, Ike, don't you know me?" she screamed, and was answered only by the mocking silences of the woods.

Northward she struggled, driven by her captors; and all around she saw the un pitying children of the wood. Down to the edge of the rivers came the dark majesty of the forest. Below struggled the green galaxy of bushes and shrub; and above, towering heeches, clean-barked, smooth, gray, rearing their clouds of delicate leafery; sycamores, whose massive pillars gleamed white through the dusky aisles; superb cottonwoods, bearing with proud lightness their weight of ever-trembling leaves; colossal oaks, like Atlas lifting up green worlds of foliage; and, king of all, the American linden—the tulip tree—its branches a stupendous dome of majestic beauty, over which, in May, it cast the miraculous loveliness of its waxen blossoms.

By day Toinette saw at times the milder people of the woods, crouched in the night encampments, she listened with beating heart to the terrible scream of the cougar, the tawny demon of the wood, or trembled in apprehension of those other human, more dreadful demons, her captors.

Noon of the sixth day of November. A fire of twigs filled the teepee with an acrid smoke and rendered the cold but little less damp. On the pile of skins upon the frozen ground were three figures, two men and a woman. Both men wore the leathern dress and moccasins of the Indian, but in spite of his dress and darkly tanned face, it could be seen that one was white. The woman wore what had once been a dress such as swept the garden walks of Versailles; but it was now no more than a torn and muddy rag, her naked shoulders scratched and torn by branch and briar and blue with cold. The white man tossed a buffalo robe toward the girl, and motioned her to cover her shoulders with it, leering ingratiatingly while the Indian scowled. His high, swarthy cheekbones were framed by braids of coarse black hair, plentifully smeared with bear's grease and adorned by the feathers of the hawk and eagle; one of his eyes was gone, the brows contracting over a slit that showed a blood-red cavity; but the other burned with a hypnotic intensity. His heavy lips muttered an incantation. He was Elkskatawa, the Prophet.

"There'll be a brick house for you to build a fire for you every morning, w... you're still snug in bed! Happen you'll remember poor Simon Girty then, freezin' out in the woods with the Injun devils, rot them!" He glanced at Elkskatawa as if afraid that the Indian might have understood his last words. "You'll not forget the man as was kind to you then, 'will ye?"

Toinette shuddered at his tone and was silent.

"Oh, I'll see that ye git to Malden, all safe, my beauty," he went on, reassured by the Prophet's apathy. "Tis a fine, handsome man the's waiting fur ye that—a purty red coat he w'ars, and a tossel o' gold on each shoullder—purty ez a king. He'll pay many a goldpiece fur ye, my dear. An' ye'll be wuth 'em all," he giggled evilly.

Toinette looked at him as a frightened bird looks at a snake, unable to move; a tear stole from beneath her lashes and rolled down her wasted cheek.

"Suppose ye talk a bit to me—that's a good gal. Come, what's yer name? Tight-mouthed still, are ye? Ye'll beg to speak 'fore I'm done with ye!"

The flaps of the deerskin tent were drawn aside and the painted face of a warrior was thrust in. He was dripping with sweat though the day was chilly, and his words were hurried. Toinette strove in vain to catch an English word among the torrent of Delaware, but none came; she guessed from the startled glance from Girty's lips that the message was of serious portent. Girty, casting a glance over his shoulder, saw the girl's intense gaze fixed upon them, and laughed sneeringly.

"Here's some news fur ye—that fine young man of yours has he's scalp lifted, he, he, he! Some o' the young Fortwaintians met up w' him, w'inkin' long lost into the woods as ef he thought he was in Philadelphia!"

Toinette whitened. The braves who had brought her into the village of the Prophet had told Girty, doubtless, that she had recognized the sick man in the woods. Had another scouting party found Ike and killed him? She could not know; Girty, seeing her blanch, at his random thrust, giggled in triumph. The news which the runner had brought was that the army of whites was within a few miles.

The consultation between the Prophet and the renegade went on in guttural whispers. Toinette began to wonder why the news of the capture of a single white man should cause so prolonged a discussion. Sounds of unusual activity in the village began to reach her—a constant patter of moccasined feet, hurrying by the tent, the occasional wailing of a squaw, quickly hushed by an angry command, the barking of the mangy Indian dogs—an unmistakable restlessness in the whole camp.

1,500,000 French Killed

An Atlantic Port—France in four years of conflict to preserve her own liberty and that of the world, according to Andre Tardie, French high commissioner to the United States, has lost 1,500,000 men killed and as many wounded. America owes France an enormous debt of gratitude for this heroic outpouring of her life's blood and also for the reported saving of thousands of lives in this country and throughout the world through the discovery by French peasants of a perfect remedy for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments which, it is said, has relieved incalculable suffering and prevented thousands of surgical operations. Geo. H. May, prominent Chicago chemist, imports the ingredients and sells this remedy in America under the name of May's Wonderful Remedy. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One does not will convince your money refunded. J. P. Baker and druggists everywhere.

Sounds of unusual activity in the village began to reach her—a constant patter of moccasined feet, hurrying by the tent, the occasional wailing of a squaw, quickly hushed by an angry command, the barking of the mangy Indian dogs—an unmistakable restlessness in the whole camp.

There fell on her ear the faint sound of drums—distant, measured, unlike the irregular beating of the drums of the savage. Nearer and nearer it came, steady, unmistakable; and then, her heart at first refusing to believe her ears, the shrill and reckless music of the fife! She began to thrill with hope in every nerve; and with an inarticulate sob of joy she rose to her knees. The Indian and the renegade looked up sharply as she started up; and with a cruelty that stunned her, Girty laughed in her face.

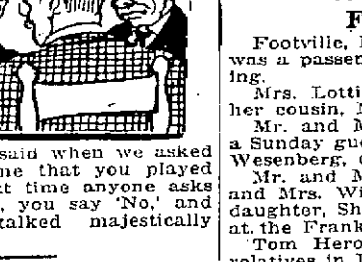

"He, he, he!" That hain't any friends o' yours, my dear! Tis a company o' Proctor's Redcoats from Malden—they'll make ye a fine body-guard to take ye 'cross to Canada. He, he, he! Ye thought twas some o' the boys from Corydon! It's a shame t' disappoint ye so. But if ye don't wish fur t' go with the king's sogers, ye're not obleged to. Why don't ye go with Simon Girty, instead?"

She shrank away from his filthy hand in unutterable loathing and threw herself face downward in a paroxysm of weeping. The music of the drums and fife had ceased. Outside, the camp buzzed with activity. The Prophet bent the red cup of his eyes less socket over a lapful of grotesque amulets, muttering incantations to himself.

DINNER STORIES

Jenkins is a Brooklyn business man who travels a good bit and who fancies he knows a lot about the game of auction bridge. He was on a trip not long ago and was invited to make a four-day guest at the home of a friend. When it was all over one of the quartet, a gruff, elderly man, turned to Jenkins and said:

Young man, you said when we asked you into this game that you played auction. The next time anyone asks you that question, you say 'No,' and he turned and stalked majestically into the diner.

New Hair Growth After BALDNESS

HAIR GROWN ON MR. BRITTAIN'S BALD HEAD BY INDIANS' MYSTERIOUS HAIR GROWER

My head at the top and back was absolutely bald. The scalp was shiny. An expert said that as he thought the hair roots were extinct, and there was no hope of my ever having a new hair growth. Yet now, at an age over 40, I have a luxuriant growth of soft, strong, lustrous hair! No trace of baldness. The pictures shown here are from my photographs.

Indians' Secret of Hair Growth

At a time when I had become discouraged at trying various hair lotions, tonics, specialists' treatments, etc., I came across, in my travels, a Cherokee Indian "medicine man" who had an elixir that he asserted would grow my hair. Although I had but little faith, I gave it a trial. To my amazement a soft hair growth developed day by day into a healthy growth, and ere long my hair was as prolific as in my youthful days.

That I was astonished and happy is expressing my state of mind mildly. Obviously the hair roots had not been dead, but were dormant in the scalp, awaiting the fertilizing potency of the mysterious poultice. I negotiated for and came into possession of the principle for preparing this mysterious elixir, now called Kotaliko, and later had the recipe put into practical form by a chemist.

That my own hair growth was permanent has been amply proved. Obviously, the hair roots, which have reported satisfactory results from Kotaliko.

How YOU May Grow YOUR Hair

My honest belief is that hair roots rarely die even when the hair falls out through dandruff, fever, excessive dryness or other causes. The hair roots remain in the scalp, waiting for the right conditions to grow again. Experts that often when hair falls out the roots become imbedded within the scalp, and in this position they remain for a time like bulbs or seeds in a bottle which will grow when fertilized. The hair roots which contain alcohol are enemies to the hair, as they dry it, making it brittle. Kotaliko contains those elements of nature which give new vitality to the scalp and hair.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Readily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap to make, but it really has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

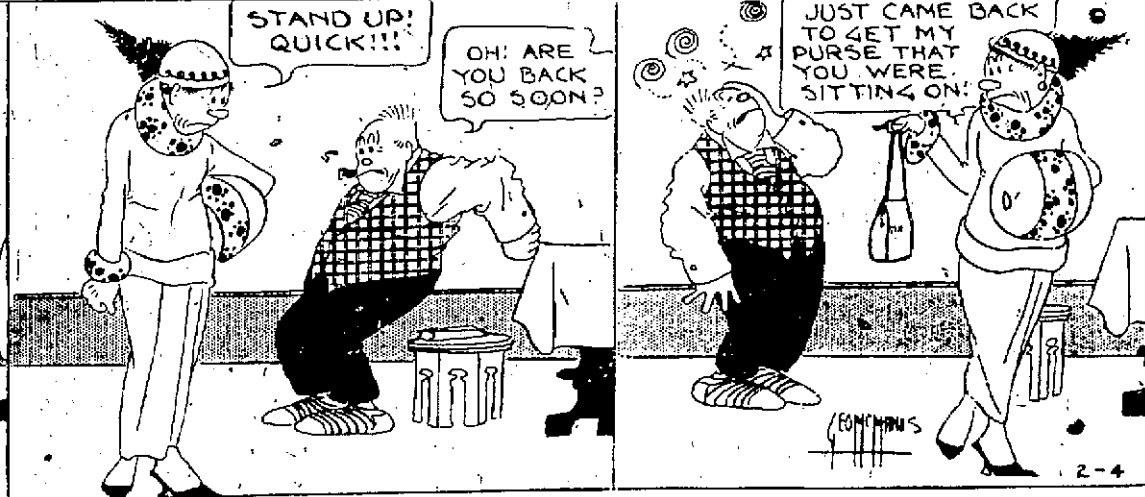

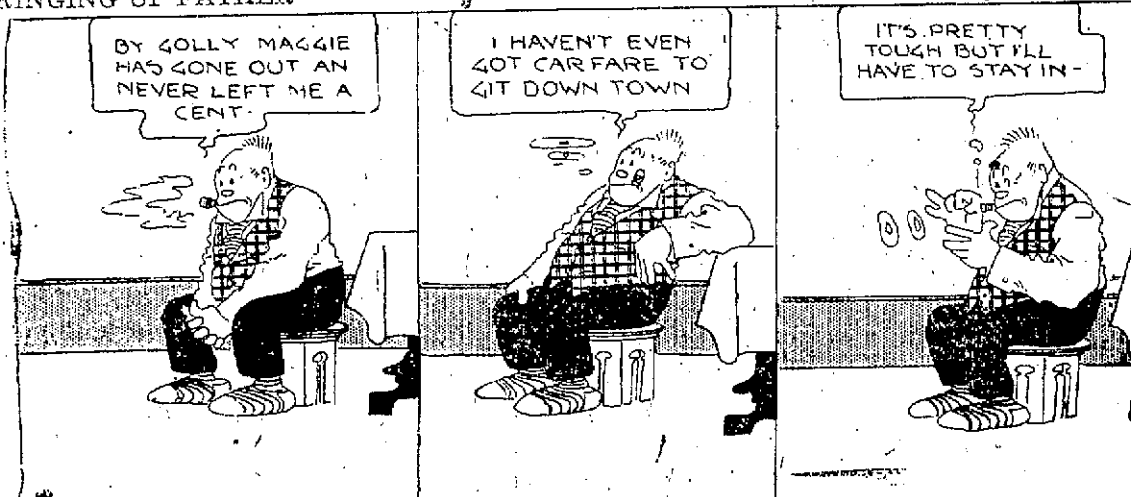

Get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, whooping cough or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

PRAISES MEMBERS OF DRAFT BOARDS

By Fred L. Holmes

Madison, Feb. 4.—Major E. A. Fitzpatrick sent a letter to the Wisconsin legislature today in reply to the resolution asking for the names and accounts paid to members of the draft boards, in which he says that he is no longer federal disbursing officer and "hence is unable to supply from the official records the information which you request." Attached to the statement is a report on the work done by the draft boards in which he gives these officials his praise.

"The sensational publicity given to the figures made available for the press is the natural result of considering cost without relation to service or to time," says Major Fitzpatrick's statement. "It must clearly be kept in mind that whatever compensation was drawn by a member of a local board, he was clearly entitled to it under regulations prescribed by the president of the United States. Whether or not a particular individual should have taken compensation, or having taken it, he claimed he was serving the government patriotically, are questions for the individual's conscience."

Edgerton News

Edgerton, Feb. 4.—At the regular meeting of the council held at the council chambers last evening, H. W. Bueningman, architect from Milwaukee, was present to advise the council in regard to the building of a new city hall. Several ideas of structure were considered and tentative plans were considered. It seemed to be the prevailing idea that a city hall should house the city offices and suitable quarters should be provided for the soldiers and sailors and suitable quarters for the fire department, in which they could hold their meetings. W. P. Mabbett and H. Wesendonk were appointed as a committee to investigate the different locations suggested. The mayor and city clerk were given power to have suitable plans or rough sketches drawn. It seemed to be the opinion of the council that the fire department should be housed in the old city hall and that building should be remodeled to suit the needs.

We couldn't make the Maxwell any better; so we made it better looking

AN artist never frames his masterpiece until he finishes it.

So the new Maxwell, a completed work, is now robed in new garments.

They do not make it run any better. They make it look better.

Mr. Whistler, himself, were he here today and saw a new Maxwell pass on the street, would probably give it a second look.

A little touch here, the straightening of a line there, the bringing of a fender a little closer to the wheel, a circassian walnut dash before you as you sit at the wheel, the strength lent by putting the gas tank in the rear, the multiplication of bonnet vents, the adding of three more painting coats, the increased thickness of the seat cushions—these, though but a few of the many changes made,—show the tendency of the new beauty.

It is in the sum of many little things that the full story is told.

The car was first checked off in squares, as a doctor sometimes marks off a man's chest and back to test every square inch of the lungs.

And there was an improvement made in nearly every square.

When the task was done it looked like a different Maxwell.

But it wasn't.

It was the same, sound, go-get-there chassis built to stand the gaff of rough and ready driving, built to endure, to "stay put," to stand all the erratic moods of the careless driver.

It was a five year drive to reach this present peak of Maxwell efficiency. But the engineers, and the manufacturing men knew that building a chassis without fundamental change in design year after year would ultimately tell in results. For every one knows that doing one thing results in doing it well.

So in five years 300,000 Maxwells have come forth, all built on the original chassis plan—each new one better than the last.

There is no self-starting automobile in the world that has such a manufacturing record.

Think what it means to a man who owns one:

He has not paid for a false overhead.

He has not paid for manufacturing mistakes.

He has not paid for experimental work.

He has not paid for the changes of mind of another man.

Today you get a better Maxwell than any of the 300,000, and a better looking Maxwell. It is a finished work, a completed task, a thing well done.

You run no risk—and when you cast your eyes on it you are tempted to feel that the price might easily be $200 more.

See the latest Maxwell at our Salesroom.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Feb. 4.—Weakness developed in the corn market today largely owing to announcement that Great Britain and Argentina would sign a convention at once without any specification as to minimum prices.

Reports that Argentine corn exports below a stated minimum would be for a long time followed by a material setback all around.

Oats declined with corn. After opening at 24c, the market recovered to well below yesterday's finish.
